

Continuing Studies

Professional Programs

Teaching Opportunity in UBC's new "Building Green with LEED" courses

UBC Continuing Studies is introducing new professional development courses in collaboration with the Canada Green Building Council (CaGBC). A range of courses developed by the CaGBC on green building and LEED core concepts and strategies will support professionals throughout the Lower Mainland in sustainable building and design and offer preparation for the Green Building Certification Institute's (GBCI) exams.

We are seeking experienced instructors committed to sharing expertise, strategies and resources in a learner-centred, top quality program.

UBC Continuing Studies is committed to excellence in all of our programs. We are looking for professionals who have:

- LEED AP certification
- CaGBC membership or affiliation
- experience in green building design and implementation of green building projects
- experience with the LEED rating system
- a passion for teaching and teaching experience.

We offer:

- a part-time contract opportunity (evening and weekend courses) beginning early 2011
- remuneration reflecting top quality teaching and professional expertise – starting at $100/hr
- flexibility in our scheduling to accommodate your work commitments
- state of the art teaching facilities downtown at UBC Robson Square and/or UBC Point Grey
- opportunities for further involvement in our professional development programs.

For more information and to apply with a letter of intent and resume please contact:

Deena Boeck
UBC Continuing Studies, Professional Programs
E-mail: deena.boeck@ubc.ca
Tel. 604-822-8098

Application deadline: September 3, 2010